Happenings of Interest from Different Sections.

Six hundred dollars' worth of produce was raised in the school gardens of Burlington last summer.

Middleton Springs has a fund of $310 toward a community memorial for the boys from there who served in the world war.

The largest deer so far reported are a 300-pound doe shot by Edward J. LaBell of West Rutland and a 300-pound buck shot by William Howard of Pittsford.

St. Charles council, Knights of Columbus, Sunday evening conferred the third degree on a class of 60, the work being done in the state armory at Bellows Falls. A dinner was served in the Knights of Columbus hall.

Rev. Clifford H. Smith, who was acting pastor of the Congregational church in Ludlow during the absence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Ballou, in France, is to continue his work another year as assistant secretary for the national council of Congregational churches.

Henry C. Rumsey, 75, who died at his home in Castleton Dec. 1, had been a member of the Congregational church there 52 years and for 42 years was a member of the choir. He had filled most of the public offices in town, represented it in 1868 and was a director of the National bank at Fair Haven.

A business deal was completed in Burlington whereby the Horatio Hickok company, one of the oldest lumber concerns in that city, passed into the hands of A. B. Buell, one of the partners in the business. It is probable that several other prominent Burlington men will be associated with Mr. Buell in the new company. The Hickok company is capitalized at $60,000, and is one of the largest plants of box shooks and crates of all description in New England.

The Deerfield Pulp company's camp, No. 2, in Searsburg burned to the ground last week Tuesday evening. The fire was started by one of the lumberjacks accidentally striking some bed bug juice into the straw of one of the upper bunkers and it leaked through on a lamp. The lamp exploded and everything was blazing in no time. Some of the men lost all of their clothes, but were taken care of by the company. The loss was partially covered by insurance.

Burlington's treasurer has been authorized to borrow $170,000 with which to pay a state tax, current expenses and to repay money which has already been borrowed. Since the taxes were collected in September, there is no money left in the street department and the commissioners have threatened to remove no snow from the streets this winter until they see the money "in their hands." They assert that the appropriation of the streets should be spent on road repair work and not in removing snow, and ask for a refund of $2,000 which was spent during 1919 in that way and for an appropriation of $1,000 to be used in removing a snow which falls before Jan. 1. The city attorney is said to agree with the commissioners in the interpretation of the law. The aldermen compromised by appropriating $1,000 for this month, but the mayor has until the next regular meeting of the board, which is in January, to consider the matter, which will not be decided by into the street commissioners' hands during December, so there is a prospect that pedestrians will plough their own way on the Burlington sidewalks if snowstorms come.
